Predictable Parallel Computing
The Predictable Parallel Computing group aims at converging the High-Performance Computing and the Critical Real-time Computing domains, focusing on developing systems that consider HPC qualities such as performance and scalability, and embedded systems qualities as well, such as reliability and time predictability.