Integration of the sex/gender dimension into research

The BSC has a research line on sex and gender perspective in research. Currently, the BSC Ph.D. programme offers a course for those studying at our institution, to learn to apply different strategies to the design and overcome existing sex, gender, and intersectionality biases. We invite participation in the cross-cutting team on sex and gender perspectives in research from BSC. We are working in all departments to expand examples of applications and scientific publications in the area.
